MY STORY

Growing up, I had absolutely no idea which career path I wanted to take. All I knew was it would definitely be in an office environment. My first office role was with South Eastern Trains as a Helpdesk Administrator, before moving on to my second office role with Johnson Controls at the Goldman Sachs site. I stayed within the facilities department for almost ten years, in which time I had my two children. As I am sure, you will agree, having two bundles of joy really do take up most of your time, but they have by far been my greatest achievements. Plenty of family holidays and adventurous days out, each day is never the same.

Since joining Bloomsbury Wealth, I have had the pleasure of being welcomed by the most supportive and friendly team. I love the energy and challenge of working for such a first-class company that believes in great work ethics and helping their clients.
